Numis expands international capabilities with opening of Dublin office

Numis, the independent investment bank, has announced the expansion of its international capabilities, with the official opening of a new office in Dublin, Republic of Ireland, following regulatory approval from the Central Bank of Ireland.

As a strategic gateway for public and private businesses to access investors based in the European Union (EU), the new office supports Numis' ongoing strategic objective to diversify and internationalise its client-base and revenue streams. It adds to its existing presence in London and New York and will allow Numis to provide continued access to European investors for its UK issuer clients.

The expansion also allows Numis to be more agile when servicing the growing number of non-UK issuers in its client list and build on its existing international track record. In 2021, 18% of Numis' investment banking revenue came from non-UK companies, which included supporting clients with IPOs in the US, Germany, Sweden, Poland and Israel.

The Dublin office, home to the new regulated entity Numis Europe Limited, is led by Garret Ward, Chief Executive Officer and Head of European Union Equities.

Alex Ham and Ross Mitchinson, Numis Co-CEOs, said: "The regulatory approval for our new Dublin-based entity is a significant milestone as we look to further internationalise and diversify our client-base and revenue streams. It allows us to expand our leading equities platform to European institutional investors looking to gain exposure to the UK, expand our equity capital markets reach to non-UK issuers, and support high-growth private companies looking for capital solutions."

Garret Ward, Chief Executive Officer and Head of European Union Equities at Numis Europe Ltd., said: "Our European office will provide greater flexibility and an enhanced capability to target opportunities across the EU. Building on Numis' success to date, we look forward to building stronger connections with clients through our European office and supporting them on their growth ambitions."
